

Got a math question you think another mathematician might know the answer to?

Post it here on one of these small sheets of paper. Include your name if you like. Got an answer to one of these questions? Post it under the question.

Somebody will periodically post these questions to mathoverflow.net so that mathematicians who couldn't make it to the Joint Meetings can see what you're thinking about (and try to answer your question). Better yet, you could post your question there yourself. If you do, fill in the question number so that other people interested in the same question know where to look for responses (you don't need to write the whole URL, just the number immediately after `http://mathoverflow.net/questions/`).